

WAY OUT

This small collection of poems is about our exit from life and, like Brexit, is about the transition from a world that is vibrant, collaborative and encompassing to one that is lonely, static and beyond comprehension. Some of the thoughts set down here are seeking the celestial and eternal but others, because we are who we are, are mundane. Dying is no joke but sometimes the thought of it is.

Famous last words No dice
Frame-up Ton Up Boy
In Loving Memory Rigor Mortis
Albert's suicide note Blue Rinse Blues
Butterfly Minder The Paisley Pattern
Death is a holiday Forget me not
Death of Ceres Leaded Light
Advertisement for a one-way ticket
Headstone Death of a Musician
Reality